

ANTHROPOLOGY: WVC at OMAK LIBRARY

Anthropology books tend to be found throughout the Dewey Decimal number system. However, cultural anthropology can be found in 305.8 and 306.0899 in our collection. Try 573.2 and 599.9 for biological or physical anthropology.

The following represent our collection so check our shelves for many others available. You can locate books from our collection and from the Wenatchee campus library by using Catapult, our online catalog. Catapult is available from the library homepage at <http://commons.wvc.edu/library/mainpage/Home.aspx>. If you select "Search all WVC Books," you can search the print collection and Ebrary, the electronic book collection of 40,000 books, at the same time. You can even access both from home. Use WorldCat to find books in other libraries. Interlibrary loan service is available.

Websites: Librarians or subject experts developed the following directories and the websites they suggest are considered reliable. Most textbooks now include lists of reliable web sources so be sure to check your text.

- Librarian's Index to the Internet (<http://lii.org>). Type in a topic since Anthropology is spread throughout the subject headings.
- O'Keefe Library Best Information on the Net (<http://library.sau.edu/bestinfo/>). Click on Resources by Major and choose Multicultural Studies
- WWW Virtual Library (<http://vlib.org/>). Choose Humanities and Anthropology. You should arrive at AnthroTech at (<http://vlib.anthrotech.com/>). Choose your topic.

Web Directories and Websites

Individual Web Sites of Interest

- Experience Rich Anthropology (<http://era.anthropology.ac.uk>) presents case studies covering a wide variety of topics, including "ethnologic analyses" from such places as Turkey, India, Poland, and Africa. The site includes full-text articles and primary materials. The site is easy to navigate.
- Public Anthropology (<http://www.publicanthropology.org>) was created and maintained by scholar Robert Borofsky. The site contains collections photos, writings, and article summaries from American anthropologist. A major goal is to make information in the field readily accessible.
- Resources in Ethnographic Studies (<http://www.loc.gov/folklife/other.html>) is hosted by the Library of Congress. It is particularly "compelling for scholars in anthropology, ethnomusicology, and folklife." This is a huge site with links to scholarly sites worldwide.
- UCSB Department of Anthropology (<http://www.anth.ucsb.edu/>) contains a link to ongoing research by Santa Barbara faculty.
- WWW Virtual Library: Indigenous Studies (<http://www.cwis.org/wwwvl/indig-vl.html>) presents resources from Africa, Asia, Middle East, Central and South America, Europe, and the Pacific.

HINT: More websites are available on the library homepage when you choose to search Anthropology under Subject-Specific Information Pages.
